FROM THE PRESIDENT

This past Saturday, I wandered down to Black Mountain Presbyterian Church to get a taste of Second Loaf, a collaboration born of a partnership between Swannanoa Valley Christian Ministry and Montreat Conference Center some thirty years ago. Each week during the summer, departing conferees – first the early risers, then dozens – drop off boxes of food and provisions left over from their week. It's an important effort for hundreds of families in a region plagued by food insecurity.

Serious work is accompanied by the joyful spirit of volunteers, MRA summer staff, and SVCM staff who take part. Margo Smith took over as lead organizer with her husband Kent in 2011. On this morning, she offers stories depicting the usual and the unusual. "We get pre-packaged food, of course, but fresh, prepared food as well. Someone brought in two pork shoulders this morning. Last week a runner jogged through, asked what we were doing, and returned with a couple of bags of food he'd bought at Ingles for us." SVCM takes it all and distributes it to the families that need it most.

Second Loaf is characteristic of the way that Montreaters engage in community efforts beyond the Montreat Gate. The conference center itself relies on 300 volunteers each year (thank you!), but even that demand doesn't satisfy the desire of folks to get involved. SVCM is one of dozens of local agencies that benefit from Montreat volunteers and donors.

Second Loaf runs like a top, yet new faces are always welcome, and you don't need to be a year-round resident to take part. If you're interested in making this a part of your Montreat experience next summer, contact Martha Sloan at the MRA next spring, or be on the lookout for Margo's message to volunteers in April.

Trivia: Where in Montreat is the Memorial to Daniel Boone and the Spanish-American War?

In 1913, the Boone Trail Highway and Memorial Association was chartered to promote highway construction, patriotism, and Daniel Boone. Montreat is the site of one of their 53 remaining Daniel Boone Trail metal plaques which are made from the salvaged metal of the USS Maine, which blew up in Havana Harbor and led to the 1898 Spanish-American War. PACE GUIDELINES FOR HIKES:

Leisurely: There is no time crunch for this hike.

Moderate: This hike can afford a few non-scheduled stops.

Fast: This hike must leave on time; hikers may need to walk briskly to get back on time.

TUESDAY JULY 23, 2019

Half Day: Rainbow Mountain—Pace: Moderate and strenuous.

Full Day: Walker's Knob-Pace: Moderate with a few strenuous sections; 10.3 miles total; 2,500 ft. gain.

We'll ascend via the Graybeard Trail to Walker's Knob which offers a superlative view of Montreat and Black Mountain.

After lunch, we'll return via the same route.

THURSDAY JULY 25, 2019

Half Day: Lower Piney-Pace: Leisurely, easy hike.

Full Day: Trestle Railroad Tour—Pace: Moderate; 8.8 miles total; 2,000 ft. gain.

This hike will trace the entire route of the Dickey and Campbell Railroad within the Montreat valley. Started in late 1912 and completed just 364 days later (with the help of several hundred workers and 700 tons of dynamite), the 22-mile-long railroad system supplied the sawmill in Black Mountain with logs from the virgin spruce and fir forests on the flanks of Mount Mitchell. Beautiful fitted stone walls, slag piles of "clinkers" from the steam engines, and the remains of several old bridges are just some of the historic details featured on this hike.
